Sedation Dentistry - Is it for you?

Did you know that Dr. Wolanski was afraid of the dentist when he was a child?

This would change during his teen years when he was treated by Dr. Kindrachuk who was kind and made the experience much more comfortable. This man later taught Dr. Wolanski in dental school, and “he is one of the reasons I became a Dentist” says Dr. Wolanski. The ability to treat patients with care and comfort has always been a hallmark of our office but with the addition of deeper sedation techniques we can provide greater comfort to patients who might otherwise avoid dental treatment until the pain becomes too much to tolerate.

The following case was made possible with Sedation Dentistry.

Work shown done by Dr. Robert Wolanski in the Spring of 2011 at Lakeside Dental Clinic.

AFTER

This patient was highly fearful of the dentist and the thought of doing anything to fix her teeth was more than she could bear.

The dentistry required was too big a hurdle for her to overcome until she was referred to our office to consider sedation. She started to breakdown when she came into our office. We took the time required, in a non-judgmental fashion, to help her through the process of repairing her oral health including her teeth and gums. Without the sedation capabilities in our office this wonderful lady could not have been helped.

She was thrilled with the results and could not remember much of the dental appointment. At this stage multiple root canals, crowns, gum surgery and bone grafting have been completed and the space in the top left is healing in preparation for an implant crown that will be placed by her dentist at home, out of province.

We are excited and grateful to be able to help patients, like this lady, that make a commitment to the health of their teeth.

If you know someone who is struggling with the look of their smile, or the health of their teeth and are afraid of the dentist, ask them to visit us at Lakeside Dental Clinic. We will give them a no cost consultation to see if they are candidate for sedation dentistry.

Sedation Dentistry Now a Value-Added Service at Lakeside Dental Clinic

Treating patients that have high anxiety and have let things degrade to the point of severity is one area of dentistry that we have mastered at Lakeside Dental Clinic. This requires the ability to carry out all forms of dentistry including surgical procedures at the time the patient is sedated. To make sure our patients are getting the treatment that they need that they may have been avoiding due to fear and anxiety – we have made the cost of sedation more affordable.

In the past, the cost of sedation was based on an hourly rate ranging anywhere from $350-$750 per hour and the amount of time required was unknown. For larger cases, 4 hours is typical, so the costs were extremely high.

However, our office has chose to add sedation as a service and we do it on a non-profit basis. This allows us to help patients that would otherwise choose not to complete their needed treatment because of fear. We set the fee at $390.⁰⁰ for whatever time it takes to complete the case.

So if you have been putting off necessary treatment because of fear and anxiety ask us how sedation dentistry may be the answer for you...
